Sketching the Garden

Sketching is a wonderful skill to learn, especially if you travel or want to record a flower in your garden. Working in the Garden, Jaclyn will teach you how to take a pencil or pen and capture what you see. With simple composition tips, shading techniques, and noting highlights, you will learn how easy and fun drawing can be when you relax and don't sweat the unneeded details. In event of inclement weather, the class will sketch from live plants in the classroom. A materials list will be sent with your confirmation. Designed for adults only. Eight session class.

Watercolor Collage from Abstract to Realism

This is a unique method of studying basic design through collage. The process involves staining Oriental (washi or rice) papers with transparent watercolor. The papers retain some of the luminosity of the watercolor with the added benefit of texture. By combining watercolor and collage, exciting and innovative opportunities of expression open up. Besides being a versatile and flexible way to explore creativity, watercolor collage encourages an individual approach to art emphasizing design through experimentation. All levels are welcome but basic watercolor technique will not be taught. A packet of various rice papers is included in the tuition. Designed for adults only.

Hungarian Goulash - An International Classic

Ilona Kiss Cooper grew up in the small farming village of Tornaszentjakab in northern Hungary. The traditional Hungarian dishes her mother taught her to make, such as gulyásleves (goulash) and palacsinta (Hungarian-style crêpes), used ingredients her parents grew right on their farm including: paprika, walnuts, and apricots (for making a thick jam). In this class, Ilona will make authentic Hungarian goulash and dumplings accompanied with a cucumber salad lightened for modern American tastes. For dessert, her Hungarian-style crêpes are to die for. Join us to sample these Hungarian classics. Designed for adults only.

The Diabetic Gourmet

What do you get when you team up a CIA trained chef with two registered dietitians? It's obvious - gourmet food for people with diabetes! In this class Gerard Campione, executive chef at St. John's Mercy Medical Center and former executive chef at Sunset Country Club, is teaming up with the Center's community dietitians Mary Ellen Idstein and Marjorie Clever to create a fabulous meal appropriate for someone with diabetes. For inspiration Chef Campione will be drawing upon the creative recipes of noted chefs such as Charlie Trotter and others to create a gourmet meal using common and "exotic" foods. Throughout the class Mary Ellen and Marjorie will explain the basics of sound nutrition and how a person with diabetes can learn to adapt or select appropriate gourmet recipes without having to rely upon a special "diabetic" cookbook. Your specific cooking, nutrition, and diabetes questions will be answered. Since current dietary recommendations for controlling diabetes (and maybe even helping to preventing it) follow the same basic guidelines as for a healthy menu (with a few special modifications) this class will also be appropriate for someone who currently doesn't have diabetes but wants to learn how to eat healthy. Don't miss this wonderful opportunity to discover some great "new" foods and healthy recipes and learn the guidelines you should follow to eat well and prosper even if you have diabetes! Native American and Pioneer Healing with Plants

We may look at a wild field in Missouri and see beautiful wildflowers or pesky weeds, but Native Americans and pioneers in this area saw a rich pharmacopeia of medicinal plants, and used the local flora to treat a wide variety of ailments. Take a tour through our Sacred Seeds Garden, which includes local tall grass prairie and shade plants, to enjoy these plants in their natural habitat. See demonstrations of medicinal harvesting, learn traditional techniques for transforming local plants into medicinal remedies, and celebrate the importance of the local Missouri flora to Native Americans and pioneers. Designed for adults only.

Don't Kill your Perennials

Some information about perennial maintenance in books is inappropriate for the Midwest perennial garden. In this hour and half walking tour in Kemper Center Gardens, June Hutson, MBG Kemper Center Supervisor, will highlight what to do and what not to do in the fall season for the most commonly grown perennials. Tips will include time of pruning, common mistakes, mulching, and getting ready for the most roller coaster of all seasons- St. Louis winters. You will see first hand how to take care of perennials from our areas' top perennial expert. Designed for adults only.
